

LATEST INF WORLD RANKINGS UP TO JANUARY 24TH

The INF has updated its rankings to reflect matches played during the Constellation Cup and the Switzerland v Canada Test Series both held in October, the Nations Cup held in December, and the England v Australia Test Series held in January.

Following this activity, there is no change to the ranking for the top 14 teams. However Papua New Guinea has moved up one place to 15, with Singapore dropping one position to 16.

As a result of Canada's win over Switzerland they now gain two places in the rankings, moving up to 19. Botswana subsequently moves down one place to 20 and Zimbabwe also drops a place to 21.

Chinese Taipei has now played enough games to gain a ranking position and is placed at 33.
