

Latest INF World Rankings up to August 16th 2015

The INF has updated its rankings to reflect matches played during the Netball World Cup SYDNEY 2015 held in August. The new rankings are also based on results from the Pacific Games and the Tri Series between South Africa, Fiji and New Zealand, both held in July.

There is no change to the top eight order, however Trinidad & Tobago (now ranked 9), Scotland (10) and Papua New Guinea (16) have each risen one place up the rankings, alongside Uganda who also moves up one spot to 13. Samoa and Zambia have both dropped one place to 14 and 17 respectively, with Barbados falling two places to 11. Sri Lanka has also dropped down two places and is now ranked at 24.

Vanuatu and Tonga have now both played ranking matches but will need to play four and three more games respectively to reach the eight games required to achieve a World Ranking.
